Can you decipher the message hidden in the eye chart?

Seeing is believing ...

... some games using your eyes

Alphabet I Spy (2 or more players)

Someone suggests a short word to the other player(s), e.g. COMB. They then try to name 4 objects they can see which begin with those letters, e.g.

Computer

Orange

Mug

Bag

Drawing Memory Game (2 or more players)

A game that starts by being easy and gets more difficult as you go on. Take a clean sheet, A4 or larger. The first player takes a pencil and draws something. Everyone looks away while the second player takes the pencil and adds another detail, which the other players must then identify. Each player adds something in turn. With each round the drawing gets busier, and it gets harder to spot the addition. Continue until you get tired of it or run out of space!

Remember, remember ... (2 or more players)

Find a really "busy" picture in a book or magazine, Each of you looks at it closely for the same amount of time, e.g. 15 seconds. Cover it over and each write down what you can remember seeing.
